Minutes for Mission: Our gifts for M&S support ecumenical partners like KAIROS, which seeks justice and offers ways for faith groups to live out the 94 Calls to Action of the Truth & Reconciliation Commission. In March 2017, 45 people, indigenous and settler, young and old, teachers and counsellors, medical staff and faith healers gathered with one common goal - to learn how to facilitate the Kairos Blanket Exercise at the Saskatoon Friendship Centre. Those gathered were committed to living out the Calls to Action, especially as they pertain to education around the impacts of colonization. The Kairos Blanket Exercise is a rich, complex and emotional experience of sharing the history of colonization - telling the story not fully taught in school. The new facilitators committed to carrying the experience into their communities. The group learned ways to navigate the anger, tears, and painful revelations brought to light by the experience. The 45 new facilitators listened to the words of the elders, laughed and shared together, promising to support one another. The group left with open hearts and open ears, ready to share the good news of truth telling and reconciliation.
